PITTMAN CLAIM IS BADLY PUDCTURED

 told of his government's unfriendly and selfish attitude toward silver.
 "Was he told that his government's policy had cost this nation a loss of more than five billion dollars and ruined countless American citizens who had engaged in mining ventures?
 "Was he told that his government and its four brokers shell game would have to stop if we helped them out of the hole?
 "Was any new deal at all asked of the British ambassador?
 "If so, what reason was offered why this government should not have the silver when North America produces 90 and the United States 40 per cent of the world's silver?
 "Was the price fixed, as stated to the director of the mint, so that silver should not go to the aid of the beleaguered during the war?
 "Why was our silver sold on gold for $71,000,000 less than its face value? Why has the silver not been paid for?
 "Why was not the American producer given a price equal to the face value of the dollars sold, when that price would still be less than the relative value of gold and silver based on the ratio of production on the past 500 years?
 "Did not the situation present an opportunity to accomplish something permanent for the silver producer?"

"These are questions of seriousness. They are all involved in the Pittman act. They have never been answered satisfactorily, or at all, so far as I know. Until they are answered, it is difficult to believe that he most was made of a great and rare opportunity."

AMUSEMENTS

WILLIAM RUSSELL IN GREAT STORY

Richard Harding Davis is well known to every person who reads. He was a journalist, a war correspondent, a soldier, and between times an author of books. It is difficult to say what was his greatest achievement since all his efforts found emphatic recognition by the public. But the people of this town are concerned at present with his ability as an author; for today there will be shown at the Butler the film version of a romance which Davis wrote. William Fox has turned out a screen production of the Men of Zanzibar, starring William Russell. It is full of action, thrill and romance. Zanzibar on the East African coast, may be correctly termed a port of missing men. For here are gathered fugitives from every land who have been careless in their code of honor, though careful in covering their tracks. Added to the program, an old time screen favorite, Johnny Hines in Battling Tonchy. Everyone knows Johnny, the red headed office boy. Tomorrow, Gladys Walton in the Second Hand Rose and Robinson Crusoe.

A vote for Lida Gilbert for auditor and recorder is an assurance that the office will be conducted at a high standard of efficiency. N4-21

WHY WILLIAM FORMAN SHOULD BE ELECTED DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF NYE COUNTY

Because if elected his future conduct in office can be judged by his past record as a lawyer and citizen.
 Because he has lived in Nye county seventeen years and spent his time and money in upbuilding the county.

Because he is the author of and secured the enactment of the Nevada Industrial Insurance Act, under the terms of which the injured workmen and dependents in this state have been allowed and paid over two million and a quarter dollars since July 1, 1913.

Because he ranks as one of the leading lawyers in the state and has had extensive practice in both state and federal courts.

Because the office of district attorney is one of the most important in the county and he has the ability and qualifications to fill the office.

Because he believes that the prosperity of the county depends upon keeping the wheels of industry going and in the payment of good wages to workmen.

Because he is acquainted with the needs of the county and its people, is a taxpayer and his prosperity depends upon the prosperity of the county.

Because he has never failed or refused to give legal advice to clients who were unable to pay for such advice and has never turned down a client with a just cause on account of the inability of such client to pay a fee.

Because the office of District Attorney should, like that of Judge and Justice of the Peace, be non-partisan, and the incumbent be independent of all entangling alliances and free to act for the whole people of his county.

I respectfully solicit your support. N4-21
